

To Whom It May Concern,

New Jersey's "Do Not Call" program is one small government program that has improved the quality of every day living in my household. It is such a joy for me to sit down with my family at dinner and enjoy our time together without being interrupted by a call from a telemarketer. Since my household as participated in the "Do Not Call" program you actually realize the difference it has made. The government should praise programs like the "Do Not Call" program and should search for and implement more programs of this type. "Americans need to recapture that quality of life and that family togetherness it once had." Most would think that a comment like the one just made was coming from a real old timer but instead it is coming from a 38 year old. Please don't take away our choice of not being disturbed in the privacy of our own homes. Thank you!
